Step 1 Activate Adobe Photoshop Express 2.0. You must go to "Products" > "Adobe Photoshop Express 2.0" to access Photoshop Express. Download or activate Photoshop Express 2.0 from the Downloads page by clicking on the "Download" button.

Step 2 Click on the "File" button.

Step 3 Click on the "File" dropdown menu.

Step 4 Click on the "Open Document" button. Photoshop Express opens.

Step 5 In the lower half of the left side of Photoshop Express, click on the word "Open." A pop-up screen will appear.

Step 6 Select the.psd file, and click on the "Open" button.

Step 7 Click on the "Close" button.

Step 8 Photoshop Express displays the original image and the Photoshop file simultaneously. There are also a few tab controls on the top right that you can use to change the size of the window to 100%, 150%, or 200% of the original image.

Step 9 To edit your image, you will use the Layers window located at the bottom of Photoshop Express. Photoshop Express displays the original image and the Photoshop file simultaneously. There are also a few tab controls on the top right that you can use to change the size of the window to 100%, 150%, or 200% of the original image. The Layers window contains three tabs:

- The Layers panel.
- The Paths panel.
- The

Adjustment panel. Step 10 Use the Layers window to bring up the layers of your original image. Each layer becomes a panel that can be placed over the other to create various effects. Layers are not the same as resolution or color depth of an image; each layer actually has a resolution and color depth of its own. One of the first things you will probably want to do with Photoshop Express is to do a quick edit of your image. Use the controls at the top of the Layers panel to select the Background layer. After clicking on the layer, Photoshop Express will make the background transparent. If you are going to make a lot of changes to your image, you will probably want to create a new layer

Decoloration of black-colored phenol solutions by leucoberanidine bleaching earth. This study, which follows our previous work on the decoloration of phenolic dyes by bleaching earth (Y. K. Park, L. R. Schertzer and J. C. Topping, Int. J. Food Science and Technology, 19 (1994) 217), reports the removal of black-colored phenol solutions by bleaching earth. It was found that the decoloration can be attributed to leucoberanidine, the major active component of bleaching earth. The extent of the decolorization increased with increase in pH and temperature and with increase in the ratio of bleaching earth to phenol solution. The extent of decoloration was also found to be higher for black solutions than for less-colored solutions. The minimum concentration of bleaching earth necessary for removal of 50% of the color of the phenol solutions was found to be 1.7% by weight of leucoberanidine, and the corresponding amount of phenol in the solution was found to be 24.8 mg per 100 mL. With more concentrated bleaching earth, some light-colored leucoberanidine solutions were transformed to a blue-black color during the decoloration process, with the extent of this transformation depending on the concentration of the earth. These findings are attributed to decomposition of leucoberanidine to berberine, which is the product resulting from electrochemical reduction of leucoberanidine. Bleaching earth decolored the phenol solutions but only partially removed the colored phenolic compounds from the solutions. Cheng Min-huang Cheng Min-huang (; born 11
