Fancy Card Battle System
Battle Royale PvP Mode
Berserk Mode in Campaign Mode
Shared World between Multiplayer and Offline

1.) Online Survival Action RPG

A huge fantasy RPG in which you can freely customize your character. Starting with the region and character class, choose your class and weapons. You can equip primary weapons, items, spells, and companions. The world in which you travel is vast, and you can make a magnificent journey by interacting with other players and the various inhabitants. Exploring the world is also a part of the game, and you can find a variety of combat scenarios in places such as a mine, ocean, forest, and castle.

2. Fancy Card Battle System

Conventional card battles are still found in this game. With the fancy card battle system, however, you can command a huge number of cards at the same time. Meet powerful foes and characters in a miniature world and command cards to achieve strategy.

3. Battle Royale PvP Mode

This feature compels you to battle to the death using your customizable character. Travelers around the world go to the same place through the neutral plane, Netherly Cartography, where they are matched up in turn-based battles. Then, players are obliged to compete for survival in the ranked battle through to the end.

4. Berserk Mode in Campaign Mode

With the Berserk Mode, you can start a frighteningly difficult arena battle to the death with enemies using weapons and magic that are stronger than those available during the normal gameplay. You can find and search the world by finding familiar spots, such as the towns and castles. And there are also monsters in the world. As long as you desire, you can challenge and beat them using a party of warriors.

5. Shared World Between Multiplayer and Offline

A world seamlessly connected with many other worlds. When

>Q: Is there a build service for Jenkins that talks directly to dropbox or any other similar, cloud based storage mechanism? I'm trying to find a way to programmatically add files to our dropbox that are pushed to our server. I know this can be done from within Jenkins (and we have Jenkins set up), but that would require someone to be able to go in and manually add and delete files every time they want to add them. It would be much more useful to me to have that code pushed to us and have it just work. Does anyone know if there is a build service for Jenkins that does this? A: You can do this using the step: Add Files to Dropbox You will need to follow this guide to add the appropriate environment variables for your Jenkins setup. It appears that environment variables are used only in the Windows environment. This may be unnecessary for the other operating systems. 1) Create a new step in your build job. 2) Select "Add Files" and follow the steps as specified in the link above. The only downsides to using the add files to dropbox step is that you would need to enter your account info, and the process has to be interactive (it would be nice to it run in the background). Q: jQuery get number of children from id I'm trying to get the number of children of an id, based on what key I give. For example, I have: $('div#main-tabs ul li a').click(function(e) { $('div#main-tabs ul li').each(function() { var numTabs = $(this).children('a').children('li').length; alert(numTabs); }); The 'a' is the id, and the 'li' is a class. When I click the link with this href, I want it to count the number of children within its class. When I run this, it says that undefined is not a function, and that the child method is not defined.
