Polyolefin resins are prepared by polymerization of one or more selected from ethylene and other C2 to C12 α -olefins with the addition of 1-5% metal hydrides or onium compounds. The resulting polymer is expanded into a foamed structure by heating, and optionally, by adding a chain extender and/or plasticizer. Polyethylene and polypropylene are used to manufacture containers, films, sheets, and disposable cups and trays for food. Polyolefin foam is used as packing materials for dry commodities, and as insulation for hardware and construction. Polyethylene is the second most produced polymer in the world. It can be found in a wide variety of products, such as food containers, bags, bottles, insulation, pipes, lubricants, and cosmetics. Polyethylene is produced in large quantities and is used in a wide variety of industrial applications, such as in paints, construction, agriculture, and in the medical field. Polyethylene is extensively processed into extruded articles for household use, including drink bottles, margarine tubs, detergent, soap, and dishwasher bottles. Polyethylene is used to make hollow articles and containers, such as food trays, storage containers
